EX-KAISER'S SISTER DIES IN BADEN-BADEN

Duchess Charlotte Mentioned in Famous Libel Suit.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Oct. 3.—Duchess Charlotte of Saxe-Meinungen, eldest sister of former Emperor William of Germany, died today at Baden-Baden, in her fifty-ninth year.

The Prussian Princess, who was married to the then heir to the throne of Saxony in 1878, leaves one daughter, a Princess Henry of Reuss. Duchess Charlotte figured prominently in the German newspapers in 1912, when a boxing referee, appealing against the decision of the British chief of police, who had forbidden a prize fight under his auspices, declared that this daughter of Prussia had been among the spectators at the fight between Carpenter and Sullivan at Monte Carlo.

A Maximilian Harden sought to call her a witness in Count Moltke's celebrated libel case against him, claiming that she had been the person who supplied him with information regarding the Eulenburg disclosures to the Kaiser, but the court declined to summon her to the stand.

She had a number of American acquaintances and repeatedly entertained Americans at her residence.
